the objectives of thiswork are to compare the bioremediation potentials of animal dung (horse dung, elephant dung, donkey dung and their combination) as stimulants, determine the bioremediation efficiency, and the bioremediation kinetic parameters for the treatment in all the microcosms for first and second order kinetic models.

biodegradation in waters from hydraulic fracturing both intrinsic biodegradation from the free native microorganisms and enhanced biodegradation with the addition of encapsulated bacteria were observed. in total, this paper begins to better define the properties of waters derived from hydraulic fracturing and suggests a potential for the application of bioremediation to remove organic contaminants.
